BIG PROTEST MEETING AT HI EXPECTED

Resentment Against Attempt to Annex Glendale to
L. A. Is Growing

A POPULAR MOVEMENT

Citizens Indignant at the Efforts of Small Coterie of City

Indications today were that the mass meeting at the high school to protest against the annexation propaganda in the city, would turn out one of the biggest crowds of late citizens that ever assembled in Glendale.

The feeling against the movement, started by a handful of citizens, has brought many to the foreground who have hitherto held aloof from public affairs.

The annexationists who announced a strenuous well-supported movement in the Los Angeles newspapers dwindled, at the last meeting to approximately fifty persons. Many of them attended out of curiosity.

Because of his attendance at the meeting, C. E. Everington found himself Saturday featured as a supporter of the movement.

"I am not in favor of annexation," he declared at the Glendale Daily Press office today. "I attended the meeting to see who else was there and what it was all about."

"Even though my experience in Los Angeles had not given me personal reason for opposing annexation, I would still be opposed to it."

The meeting will be held at the high school Wednesday night, beginning at eight o'clock. It is important that all should attend, since a popular demonstration would eliminate the need for an election.

The questionnaire is always the first move on the part of a city council seeking to annex territory in which all the supposititious questions of the annexed are answered with beautiful promises.

Glendale has been through such campaigns in the past and knows all the ropes. Particularly experienced is the southern part of the city, formerly known as "Tropic," where the chief excitement during most of its existence was campaigns for annexation either to Los Angeles or to Glendale.

In past campaigns it has been admitted that the promises made in such questionnaires are not legally binding, but simply represent the friendly sentiment of the council making them. They generally assure the territory about to vote for annexation that they consider all such promises "morally binding."

When, however, there is a change in the personnel of a council, such moral obligations go by the board.

ESSICK FIGHT DRAW
Kid Essick of Glendale fought a draw with Kid Alexander, Torrance favorite, in the semi-final of the boxing show at Torrance Friday night. Essick and Alexander are scheduled for the main event at Torrance on Friday, December 1.

ANDREWS HOME ROBBED
The home of L. J. Andrews, 1215 South Central avenue, was entered and robbed between 6 and 8 o'clock Saturday night. A bundle of clothing was taken and nothing has been heard of it since.

THE WEATHER
Southern California: Tonight and Tuesday fair, except foggy near coast in morning.
Los Angeles and vicinity: Fair weather with moderate temperature tonight and Tuesday.

GLENDALE WOULD BE L. A. MORSEL

So Says Editor of American
Globe, Who Lives
Here

WORTH WHILE CITY

Declares It Wiser to Import
Executives Than Export
Community

By WM. J. SCHAEFLE
Editor of American Globe

Perhaps one of the most interesting diversions in the homes of Glendale, is the annexation to Los Angeles subject that has been recently introduced. The injection of this proposition is for the interests of Glendale—when the elements of progress that should be created through this intense situation are considered.

Those people who have worked for the best interests of Glendale in building up the city to the stage of being the fastest growing city of its class in America, realize that any city would be proud to "take in Glendale."

It is worth taking in. Look it over, examine its high and refined class of improvements, high class of citizenship, ideal location, and the growing disposition to give all districts a fair representation in consideration and improvement and there is clearly presented an increasing fair-minded cooperation disposition that reveals the tendency of increasing power and distinction.

There was a time when Los Angeles would not have even considered taking in Glendale. Naturally when its remarkable growth and influence has grown to its present capacity, it is worth "taking in." If it is good enough to be "taken in" Glendale is best served by remaining just "Glendale."

The present conditions could reveal to the citizens of Glendale that they have something worth "taking in."

If any cause of dissatisfaction rests in the minds of any Glendale people, with the present status of affairs, and if it proves to be against their interests, it will not remedy matters by doubling the force of the irritation by being "taken in."

Start something at home. If you are right, stand on that foundation until conditions are improved.

This agitation brings up the effective method of dealing with our affairs.

A recognized committee whose members are involved in a certain locality, could secure statistics with reference to population, schools and improvements in each district of the city of Glendale. There could be a recognized committee for every district in Glendale and these committees could exchange reports with reference to their various localities, so that all would have a true understanding of what existed and what was necessary in order to create a fair and equitable distribution of improvements throughout Glendale without special favor to any.

Facts are stubborn things and that is all the taxpayers demand in connection with their affairs.

If there are not enough men of sufficient business acumen, foresight and aggressive efficiency in Glendale to manage the business of Glendale, it is wiser to import them rather than to export Glendale.

The main idea is—if Glendale could grow into the city that it is today by itself, what has the future in store for this ideal city, when it continues along sane and progressive methods in which more improvements can be injected.

There is a vast difference between "promises and performance," and usually before one is taken in, there invariably happens to be a liberal supply of promises. Use the annexation energy in developing Glendale.

$2,100 IS CLEARED AT THE CIRCUS

Huge Sum Realized Through Unique Event in Social Circles

500 AT THE SUPPER

Day of Activity Closes with Wonderful Cabaret Performance and Ball

By RUTH RYAN

Approximately $2100 was cleared from the Tuesday Afternoon club's Society Circus, given on Saturday at the beautiful "Pinks" clubhouse on East Colorado street. The affair is one never to be forgotten, as it proved to be the biggest social event ever staged here and people by the hundreds turned out to help swell the club's building fund.

Following a day of activity among the many concessions and booths, supper was served at 5:30 to approximately 500 people. A wonderful cabaret performance was given during the dinner hour in which Miss Kathleen Woods, late of the Pantangas and Orpheum circuits and of the Marion Morgan dancers, gave a delightful Spanish dance in costume. Her dance was full of life and vivaciousness.

With appropriate Arabian setting, Mr. Eckland gave an Arabian dance in costume which, proved very effective. He was formerly with Douglas Dancers of Seattle, Wash.

Music for the dancers was furnished by Mrs. J. A. Wright at the piano, Dorothy Armstrong Welcome at the violin and Frank Wilson of Burbank played the trumpet. Jerry Parker's orchestra furnished other numbers during the dinner.

Following the dinner, an auction was held in which everything that was not sold during the afternoon was auctioned off, Ray Galvin acting as auctioneer. He certainly was a good one, for things sold thick and fast. Other members of the sterner sex who greatly assisted all afternoon and evening were John Roman, who did everything from moving pianos up; Arthur Dibbern, Jimmie Apple, Val Galtier, who sold dolls; W. J. Jones, Albert Perry of Chase & Sanborn's, who furnished and made all the coffee for the luncheon and dinner; A. H. Montgomery, A. M. Draper, representative of the Glendale police force; Maurice Andrews and Eli Rappaport.

Many beautiful prizes were awarded in guessing contests and also to those holding the lucky numbers. The beautiful lamp, made by Mrs. J. F. Hearnshaw, was won by A. M. Draper; the pink sweater was won by Mrs. C. W. Houston; another silk sweater was won by Mrs. E. W. W. Hayward; the beautiful Thanksgiving dinner appointment, including favors, cards, shades and other necessary articles, was won by Mrs. R. W. Meeker; a beautiful blouse was won by Mrs. E. L. Young; Virginia Woodward won the beautiful doll; Mr. Heide of the Newton Electric company won the large fruit cake; Miss Clara Ringert won the child's table and four chairs; Dr. C. W. Taylor won the silver toilet set; Mrs. J. T. Crampton won the large, juicy ham, William Hunter won the pair of shoes.

The holder of ticket No. 527 will receive the beautiful manicure set by Mrs. C. B. Guttart, 524 Patterson avenue, chairman of the balloon booth. Miss Grace Starkey won an order for a pair of shoes. Other prizes were won as follows: girl's organdie dress by Marie Grigle; hat by Elizabeth Ritchie; gloves by Marjorie Turner; gloves by Dorothy Robinson and a belt by Helen Harris. These were intermediate school girls who assisted in selling balloons.

Dancing occupied the greater part of the evening, and the ball room was filled to capacity. Music was furnished by the Bode-Henning orchestra and besides the many dancers there were a large number of spectators who enjoyed "looking on."

Bowling proved an interesting feature of the evening and prizes were awarded as follows: Ladies' prizes, first by Miss Alice McCoy; second, Mrs. A. L. Baird; third by Miss Leta McCoy. Gentlemen's prizes, first, Joe Fortunato; second by Mr. Violi and third, George Taunz.

About 10:30 a prize waltz was given and there were quite a number of contestants. The first prize for dancing the regular, old-fashioned waltz was awarded Mrs. Mosher and Mr. Barker. Second prize went to Mrs. Frank Clark and "Bill" Bode.

A clever concession at the circus was "Te Olde Booke Shoppe," in charge of Mrs. A. P. Findlay, Mrs. C. W. Houston and Mrs. Charles Barker assisting.

The beautiful "morning glory" cake made by Mrs. Bert Woodward is to be given the holder of ticket No. 106. If it is not called for by Wednesday morning the second number drawn, No. 216, will win it.

GLENDALE'S BIG OPPORTUNITY TO MEET BEST ADVERTISERS

By JOHN H. GERRIE
Civic Development Expert

An event of outstanding significance for all Southern California will take place in Santa Ana within three weeks' time. It particularly concerns Glendale and every city in the Los Angeles metropolitan area.

It will be the most important gathering ever held by the men chiefly responsible for the marvelous growth of California cities and notably the cities of this region. For on December 7 the eighteenth annual convention of the California Real Estate association will assemble in the capital of Orange county.

More than 500 delegates from 90 realty boards and representing one hundred or more California cities and towns are expected to be in attendance. That means that upwards of half-a-thousand of the best advertisers on earth will spend several days in this part of the country in receptive mood and ready to help advertise Glendale and district.

This is an opportunity that ought not be lost sight of here. When Santa Ana won the convention from San Francisco, Monterey and Yosemite the gallant little orange metropolis won an opportunity in which all Southern California may share.

Since the seventeenth convention in Oakland last January the state association has grown from 58 to 93 realty boards and several more boards will be formed before the convention opens. There are 12 county realty boards in affiliation besides 81 city realty boards. Every one of these boards has promised to send delegates to Santa Ana.

If all the members of all affiliated boards were to come the convention attendance would exceed 3000 active realtors, exclusive of wives and members of families of attending delegates. A conservative estimate places prospective delegates at from 500 to 750 and the ladies will probably increase the number of visitors to more than a thousand.

It will be seen, therefore, that the forthcoming convention easily will be the most important ever held by the realtors of California. Those from the north will arrive here in time to see the greatest subdivision movement in the history of Southern California. They will see the metropolitan area literally cut up into hundreds of home districts, with thousands of miles of street work and utility installations under way, thousands of homes under construction and a new empire in the making. It will be a sight that will send them back whence they came with new optimism, new confidence and new determination.

Counties of the state that will be represented at the convention will include San Diego, Imperial, Tulare, San Bernardino, Riverside, Fresno, San Joaquin, Alameda, Santa Clara, Butte, Glenn, Contra Costa, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Santa Cruz, Sonoma, Stanislaus, Kern, Kings, Yolo, Humboldt, Monterey, Marin, Placer, Madera, Merced, Napa, San Francisco, San Mateo, San Benito, Sacramento, Solano, Yuba, Sutter, Tehama and of course Los Angeles and Orange counties. A delegate may be in attendance from Hawaii.

Convention dates are December 7, 8 and 9. There will be day and evening sessions, entertainments for delegates and their wives, followed by sightseeing tours into various parts of the southland. Not the least interesting feature will be the home-town talks of five minutes each in which all represented cities will be eligible to one oration. The outstanding event will be the convention banquet at which some of the most notable speakers in California will reply to toasts on California development.

The attendance at the convention from Glendale ought to be as nearly 100 per cent as it is possible to make it and every effort should be exerted to bring as many delegates as possible on a tour of this city and district. For the best advertisers on earth will be there.

Mrs. Arthur Dibbern's cigar and soft drink stand proved very popular and she wishes to thank the Sierra Club Beverage company and the Green Hill Beverage company for their generous donations, as well as all of the merchants who donated cigars and cigarettes.

Much credit is due the merchants of Glendale for the wonderful success of this affair, as they donated most generously, everything being of the very best.

Mrs. Dan Campbell, president of the club, and Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, chairman of the ways and means committee, feel that the club is well paid for the untiring efforts put forth by every member. The people of Glendale certainly responded well and those who spent their money for this good cause went home happy for all had a wonderful time.

DRUNK AND DRIVING
H. A. Rowan, age 32, 3675 Fourth avenue, and Ben Moore, age 38, 828 West Ninth street, both of Los Angeles, were arrested on San Fernando road by Officer Schilling last night. When taken to police headquarters they were examined by Dr. Kaemmerling, who pronounced Moore drunk. Rowan was dismissed and Moore was locked in tank No. 1 on account of his inability to furnish $300 bail. The charge against him is reckless driving.

REV. O'NEILL ASKS STRONG K. OF C. UNIT

Calls on All Catholics to Rally to the Flag and Join K. of C.

ASKS ORGANIZATION

Declares "Night Gown"
Wearers Have Violated
U. S. Constitution

Seventy joined the Knights of Columbus last week. Rev. Father O'Neill told his congregation yesterday at the Holy Family church, urging the growth of the order in the city. He said in part:

"When a man, a stranger comes within our gates, how do you greet him? I say again! When a man, a stranger, comes within our gates, how do you greet him? Do you take him by the hand and tell him your name and ask him for his? Do you inquire regarding his line of business, of his health, if he is making the grade? Do you give him a welcome to our city, and make him feel that you mean it? Do you try and locate him comfortably in a home, and see that he knows where to deal for his groceries, his meat, his ice, that he has the address and telephone number of a competent physician? Do you tell him where to go for heat, light and water; and above all, do you make him feel that this House of God is his?"

Oh, my friends, you know and I know that there is hardly one in a thousand who takes the trouble to attend to these ordinary little courtesies of every day life; and you thoughtless ones, you are the losers. For, after all man must not and man cannot live alone. You little know what business opportunities you are sacrificing by not unbending and getting acquainted with the other fellow. Take, for instance, the new life that has sprung into existence in our Glendale Council No. 1926, Knights of Columbus. Seventy of the best men of our city took their first degree on Wednesday evening last, and what was the result? They became acquainted. They are glad and happy and proud that they have joined an order of a million other Catholic gentlemen, with the same objects in life. The same ideals, and the same faith, and when that meeting adjourned they were proud and happy to say, "I did it. I joined and got acquainted."

And it is where every true Catholic gentleman belongs; and please God there will be another class of seventy at the first meeting in December who will get acquainted with each other and with what a political situation. And for this means organization, this means co-operation. This means unity, and co-ordination. This means that anything that has to be done, will be done. Anything from the protection of the American flag down to the cleaning up of a dirty political situation. And my friends, we are standing face to face with that situation right here and now. It's not tomorrow, or next week, or next month. It's now. Today. Forty-six congressmen, elected to the house of representatives in Washington, elected last Tuesday week, are out and out Ku Kluxers. Men who are violating their oath of allegiance to uphold the constitution of these United States of America, by discrimination against all Catholics, Jews and negroes.

"We are not to be allowed to hold any political position. We are not to be allowed to vote. We are not to be allowed to send our children to our own schools. Kill Catholicsism. Stamp it out. We are a monarchy at heart. We are not Americans. We are aliens and are to be treated as such. Are you Catholic men and women going to let this band of night-worn wearers get away with it? No, a thousand times no. So, hearken unto me; do it now; do it today. What thousands of other good and true Catholics are doing. Rally round the flag. Get in line. Get back of your trusted lieutenants and organize. Join the Knights of Columbus and help. Do your bit to put a stop to this damnable and insidious propaganda, that will take away your rights as a citizen of this glorious country, and another thought, come to church. Get down on your knees and ask God's help, and you will win. For it is right, and you are right, and the right will always in the end prevail."

"My friends, your parish priest, ever having the interest of your spiritual welfare at heart, has requested a mission, from the good Jesuit Fathers, and the request has been granted."

Further details of his address will be found on another page.

W. H. FARLEY WAS SPEAKER AT CREDIT
W. H. Farley of Dayton, Ohio, was the speaker at the meeting of the Credit Association this noon his talk being along the line of co-operation and "salesmanship." It was "subdivided" under several heads as for example, "profit and loss as applied to retail clerks," "analysis of clerks' sales," "results of increasing the average sale."

Members were warned to beware of a woman about 22 years old and of weight of 130 pounds, light hair, and wearing either a blue or tan suit with hat to match, a very stylish ensemble, who is accused of uttering fictitious checks signed with the name "Lillian R. Meador."

SWAPPERS WILLING TO SWAP ANYTHING
Have you a little music in your home? If not, lend an ear. Glenn Dolberg, the "pitcher" gallery man, has a saxophone he simply can't learn to play. "What y' got?" asks Glenn.

The Glendale Phonograph company has a whole smorg of brand new, never-been-used talking boxes that they want to swap for old ones, along with a little cash. Keep your place in line, please.

Who wants a Metz automobile? This car is better than its name sounds, and really percolates. They want a lot—will give the horseless carriage as first payment. "Walk in, ride away," says "A. M."

Then there are other things in the swap column today. Frinstance, somebody simply hates chickens and they want to get rid of the whole flock. Another fellow wants to swap a dining room table—the floor is good enough for him. Still another has a coffee mill—he buys his pre-pulverized now. Another swapper wants to relieve himself of a camera, and another would pass on a suitcase—he's got a trunk now.

One man wants to swap a nine-room house—plenty of room for eastern visitors or the relatives. Still another has a drawing table, and another fellow has some guns—a regular miniature artillery. And so it goes.

GROWN UPS PARTY AT HI TONIGHT

Community Service Starts
Program of Organized Play

SMILE AS YOU ENTER

No Dancing or Eats to Feature Unique Entertainment

Community Service of Glendale is having a party for grown-ups tonight at 8 o'clock in the girls' gymnasium of the High School. Tickets have been given to the various churches and other organizations, but whether they have received a ticket or not every man and woman who wants to come and see what a good time it is possible to have without dancing and without eats is invited to attend. The price of admission is a smile, a greeting for your neighbors, and a desire to take part in the activities rather than just be a spectator.

The question of what to do at social gatherings is one that repeatedly confronts almost every group in the city. Community Service of Glendale has secured the services of a recreation specialist from the National Community Service Headquarters for a short time to show people from these groups new ways to make these gatherings a success and to train their leaders and those who are willing to help in this kind of work and play. The idea in having a party before the classes begin is to show people the kind of activities that will be taught. In similar work in other cities the leader has found numbers of people who did not know about the classes or who were nearly over and then regretted not having taken advantage of the opportunity offered.

A special invitation is extended to the men of the community to attend the party and the classes. Following the party tonight classes will be held for the next three weeks on Tuesdays and Thursdays at the Columbus School, and Mondays and Fridays at the girls' gymnasium in the high school, from 7:30 to 9. The two classes will be similar and the most convenient one should be chosen. There will be no fee for the course other than a willingness to help some group in the community with their good times.

MISS ARVILLA HAND OF KANSAS KILLS HERSELF WITH REVOLVER SHOT

Miss Arvilla Hand, sixteen years old, 134 East Colorado, died Saturday night of self-inflicted wounds after suffering from mental trouble some time. She escaped surveillance and securing a revolver fired a bullet through her head.

Miss Hand for the past few weeks has been living with her aunt, Mrs. E. H. Chase, at the shore of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Allen. She was a smile, a greeting for your neighbors, and a desire to take part in the activities rather than just be a spectator.

Shortly after 6 o'clock Saturday night Miss Hand climbed out of her bedroom window and walked along the side of the home to Mr. Allen's room, according to the Glendale police who have investigated the case. She climbed through the window into Mr. Allen's room. A short time later Miss Hand climbed out of the window and was not again seen until immediately after the fatal shot was fired. While in Mr. Allen's room she is supposed to have secured the 32 automatic with which she did the shooting.

Her movements from her room to the room of Mr. Allen were, according to the report, heard by Mrs. Chase, who was in the kitchen at the time. After she had gained entrance to Mr. Allen's room, her movements were not heard and Mrs. Chase, believing she had gone to sleep. Her exit from the building was not heard.

Immediately upon the shooting at 10:45 the unfortunate girl was taken by Mr. Allen to the Glendale sanitarium, where she died a short time later without regaining consciousness. The bullet entered the right temple and went through the brain, striking the opposite side of the skull.

The body was taken to the P. H. Kiefer undertaking parlors. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.

Miss Hand leaves two sisters, Revanna and Clara May, who live in Evers, Kansas, and a mother, Mrs. Elizabeth H. Hand of St. Joseph, Mo.

MRS. FINDLAY WINS PRAISE AT CIRCUS

Credit for the beautiful appointments of the old book shoppe at the Society Circus last Saturday was inadvertently given to Mrs. Charles Temple, when Mrs. Andrew Findlay was the "woman behind the guns," and created the colors in a Paisley shawl with which it was draped were repeated in the decorated drip candles and the bronzed leaves used in beautifying it.

Members were warned to beware of a woman about 22 years old and of weight of 130 pounds, light hair, and wearing either a blue or tan suit with hat to match, a very stylish ensemble, who is accused of uttering fictitious checks signed with the name "Lillian R. Meador."

SUNDAY WAS GREAT DAY IN REVIVAL

Packed Auditorium at Both Services in Central Christian Church

POINTED SERMONS

Encouraging Outlook for the Second Week of Evangelistic Campaign

By O. L. KILBORN

The auditorium of the new Glendale Central Christian church building was well filled at both services Sunday and two great services were held. In the morning Rev. Cole's sermon subject was "My Signature," and the text was from Job 31:33 (American Revised Version). The thought of the discourse was that men should give the same careful consideration to the gospel invitation that they would to a business proposition and when convinced they should sign up for life and eternity.

The evening subject was "How to Please God," from the text "without faith it is impossible to please God." A part of the faith chapter, Romans, 11, was read and the statement was made and clearly demonstrated that every act of our lives is by faith, from childhood's hour when we learn to walk, to talk and to avoid dangers, solely through faith. The business man, the inventor, the discoverer, all move by faith. We trust our funds to the bank; not because of the precautions it takes against burglary, but because of faith in the banker. Then why not accept the promises of God by faith and give allegiance to the matchless Christ?

The Conner Trio gave two great song services. In the evening three of the Sunday school juniors were added to the orchestra, two with violins and one with a tuba. The Conners sang "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," that sweetest of negro camp meeting melodies and two other beautiful numbers. Their special numbers are new at every service; they never repeat a song or reading unless requested to do so.

The meetings will continue all this week and probably next. The Conners are giving wonderful concerts every night and delighting all who hear them. The church should be crowded at every service with these musical treats and Rev. Cole's powerful, heart-searching

CATHOLICS CALLED TO ORGANIZE IN GLENDALE

Details of the Jesuit Mission to open at the Holy Family church on December 3, in the local campaign for a parochial school given yesterday by the Rev. Father O'Neill, follow:

"Starting on Sunday, December 3, there will be three Masses, 6:30, 8 and 10:30, and in the evening instruction and benediction at 7:45. During the week there will be two Masses each morning, first Mass at 5:30, second at 7 o'clock. Friday, December 8, being a holy day, there will be four Masses—5:30, 6:30, 8 and 9:30. Let me again call your attention to the special daily evening instruction and benediction at 7:45.

"There will be music every evening, by the choir of 30 voices under the direction of our organist and choirmaster, Harry Girard, who in gratitude for an early complete recovery from a serious accident, wishes to contribute his services for the entire mission. Anyone desirous of singing in the choir will be heartily welcomed, by both Mr. Girard and the present members of the choir. And here I am going to make a request. I am going to ask the Glendale Council, Knights of Columbus, to take complete charge of the general arrangement of the mission. The seating of the crowds, that I know will attend, the collection of the offerings, the registration of new members of the parish, the children's census for the parochial school, and last, the drive for pledges for the bursary system for the year of our Lord, 1933.

"My friends, we have our work cut out for us. It's a big job. A man's job. The building of a parochial school and convent for the good sisters! But we have an army to do the work. An army of seven hundred families; and if we each and every one of us do our bit, the task becomes easy. It is already half done, if we cooperate. So let us all pull together, let us put it over. And when the first of September, 1933, arrives we can pause and rest from our labors and look with pardonable pride at our handiwork. Our hearts aglow with the satisfaction of complete accomplishment. Just another miracle. In two years, a magnificent house of God, a parish home for your priest to be proud of. A convent for the good sisters. A new and beautiful home for the Knights of Columbus. And last and most gratifying, a school for the education and protection of our Catholic children. Is there one heart here that does not beat a little stronger, a little faster at the mention of our children? Already 150 are registered for the new school. One hundred and fifty, who will be safe guarded for Christ Jesus, by the good sisters of the Blessed Virgin Mary. One hundred and fifty, who we know will grow up strong in mind and body, with a spiritual education that will make them well fitted to take up our battles of life, when we grow old and dependent. Our children! The child of today becomes the citizen of tomorrow. God sees them one and all, and may they bring peace and joy and comfort to the hearts of their living parents, who have protected and watched over them, through the long years of their infancy. They have been a great responsibility to you mothers and fathers. A great care at times, but with a parental love that is akin to the love our Lord Jesus Christ bears for all the world; you have persisted in your will to do what is right for your offspring and God will surely reward you, both in this life and in the life to come.

"In closing, let me draw you a mental picture. A bell rings out clearly in the crisp morning air and from near and far one hears the childish shouts of laughter. The streets become dotted with little forms. Then suddenly all is still, all is quiet. sermons to look forward to. There is no sensationalism in the sermons, but every one of them is the pure gospel of Jesus Christ, given forth from a heart yearning for the salvation of sinners.

Tonight's subject will be "The Most Popular Sin in the World," and that for Tuesday night, "The Sin We Are Afraid to Mention." Mr. Conner said that Tuesday is to be "Father and Son" night, with all the men and boys in the center row of seats. He wants 99 men there to sing that great old song, "The Ninety and Nine." Will you be one of them?

children. Is there one heart here that does not beat a little stronger, a little faster at the mention of our children? Already 150 are registered for the new school. One hundred and fifty, who will be safe guarded for Christ Jesus, by the good sisters of the Blessed Virgin Mary. One hundred and fifty, who we know will grow up strong in mind and body, with a spiritual education that will make them well fitted to take up our battles of life, when we grow old and dependent. Our children! The child of today becomes the citizen of tomorrow. God sees them one and all, and may they bring peace and joy and comfort to the hearts of their living parents, who have protected and watched over them, through the long years of their infancy. They have been a great responsibility to you mothers and fathers. A great care at times, but with a parental love that is akin to the love our Lord Jesus Christ bears for all the world; you have persisted in your will to do what is right for your offspring and God will surely reward you, both in this life and in the life to come.

NEW BANK IS GREETED ON SOUTH SIDE

Approximately 300 Deposits Feature Opening Day Saturday

BIG RECEPTION IS HELD

Ruth Clark and Harper Cobb Are Rivals as First Depositors

Cooperation, not only of the southern section of Glendale, but of the people of the entire city, marked the grand opening on Saturday of the Community Savings and Commercial bank, of which W. W. Lee is president, in the Orin building at 1726 South San Fernando road near Brand boulevard. The interest of the public was substantially shown in the number of first-day deposits, which totaled 250 and 300, whereas the bank officials had placed their goal for the opening day at 100.

Considerable friendly rivalry was shown as to who would have the honor of being the first depositor with the new banking institution. In order to be assured of this distinction Ruth Clark and Harper Cobb were anxiously waiting for the opening of the doors at 6:30 o'clock Saturday morning. They were admitted at 9 o'clock, and both were presented with gold artipencil pencils, for opening the first accounts. Every first-day depositor was presented with a silver artipencil pencil.

The residents of the southern section of the city have long felt a need for additional banking facilities and the manner in which they responded was very encouraging to the officers and directors, according to Daniel Campbell, chairman of the board. A large number of guests arrived to inspect the quarters in which the bank is located, to open first-day accounts and to offer congratulations on the new banking enterprise. Very beautiful and numerous floral gifts sent by Los Angeles and Glendale bankers and business people added to the brilliance of the occasion.

The officers of the bank were extended many compliments on their new quarters, which are very light and cheerful. The furnishings are most attractive, being carried out in mahogany and marble. Large burglar-proof and fire-proof safes have been installed, in addition to other modern banking necessities.

The officers and directors of the Community Savings and Commercial bank include: W. W. Lee, president; John Logan, vice president; H. J. Wellman, cashier; directors, Daniel Campbell, chairman; Max Bayne, George Bentley, George V. Black, Herbert L. Eaton, George B. Karr, W. C. B. Richardson and Arthur Campbell. Because of the remarkable growth and development in Glendale, and particularly in the southern section, Messrs. Lee, Logan and Campbell, who are among the pioneer bankers of the city, are confident of the success of their new venture.

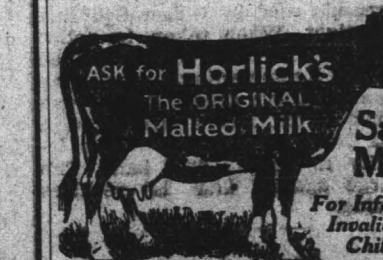

According to Mr. Lee, when the business of the bank is firmly established, it is their intention to put up a new building of their own. However, they will occupy their temporary quarters for a year or more.

To Be Chief Theme at Tuesday Forum Dinner, It Is Announced

The customary notice for the Chamber of Commerce forum meeting Tuesday noon have not been sent out but it will be held nevertheless, and the chief theme of the gathering will be a hotel for Glendale.

"The chamber is not interested," he says, "in any particular location, simply anxious to have a suitable hostelry for the accommodation of visitors interested in our city who now have no place of entertainment and who go elsewhere never to return."

The chamber's hotel committee is composed of the following members: Charles Marshall, chairman; Miss Myrtle Baldwin, secretary; John A. Logan, Arthur Campbell, D. H. Smith, Alfred Priest, William Howe and Dr. E. H. Parker.

Besides this discussion a talk will be made by Fred Menzies, manufacturer of window shades.

TAKES PAN IN HAND TO WRITE RECIPE

American Legion Auxiliaries of New York State, and former Stage Star, Cooking Her Favorite Dish

When asked to write out the recipe for her favorite dish, Miss Magrane said, "I'll take my pan in hand instead of my pen. I can cook it better than I can write about it."

Thereupon Miss Magrane, whom you might remember as a former star in "Everywoman" and "The Spendthrift," showed us how to prepare rice, Spanish style, in her own manner.

First she boils the rice in a double boiler, from fifteen to twenty minutes. The rice is then taken out of the boiler before it is completely cooked, and steamed in a colander until the kernels dry out and become fluffy. This is the sign which tells the cook that the rice is thoroughly done.

While the rice is boiling, Miss Magrane prepares the sauce, as follows: Cut onions and green peppers in fine pieces. Fry the onions and peppers for about five minutes in vegetable fat over a slow fire. Vegetable fats are particularly good for frying, as they create no smoke or odor, and can also be used several times. Then put the sauce in a frying pan with the boiled rice and dry until the rice kernels start to turn brown.

here's how to sell used cars

Mr. G. was a dealer in automobiles and occasionally had a few second hand cars which he disposed of through the Glendale Daily Press Want Ad Section. He ran the following Want Ad in several issues:

OLDS.—1920 Tour, 5-pass., all overhauled; has original paint; dandy set of tires, cords, one extra; other extras; will sell cheap.

This Want Ad produced only a few indifferent inquiries, and Mr. G. was advised by a Daily Press representative to revise his Want Ad according to the slogan, "The more you tell, the quicker you sell." The Want Ad, rewritten, ran as follows:

Oldsmobile, 1920, Touring 5-pass., 6-cylinder, Run about 12,000 miles. Has original paint; just overhauled. Wonderful set of oversize cord tires; one extra tire and cover. Wheel lock, front bumper. You will have to act at once in order to get this bargain. Just think, only $675.

At the Theatres

AT THE T. D. & L.

Ever since Mother Eve imbedded her peevish teeth in the labeled apple humanity has pondered from time to time the aged problem. "What's Wrong with the Women?" Now comes a motion picture that sets for itself the same eternal question and comes pretty close to answering it—at least so far as the present high-powered, helterskelter, flapperesque generation of women is concerned.

It is called "What's Wrong With the Women?" was produced in a powerfully dramatic sequence by Daniel Carson Goddard and it thrills and entertains a big audience at the T. D. & L. Theatre where it was shown for the first time yesterday. Today is the last day.

When one leaves the T. D. & L. Theatre after having seen the added attraction "Chinatown" he has the comfortable realization that he has witnessed a keenly interesting production and also a rarity in the motion picture world. Captain Lewis has spent thirty years, or the greater part of his life in that quaint place as a licensed guide conducting thousands of tourists and appears at each performance at the T. D. & L. Theatre and is a lecturer of no mean ability with a peculiarly fascinating manner and delivery.

AT THE GLENDALE

Ouida's immortal romance, "Unda Two Flags," is probably the best known tragedy in the world. It first achieved fame as a work of fiction; then as a play with that remarkable actress Blanche Bates in the role of Cigarette, and now Universal gives it a long expected public as a photoplay. The producing company is fortunate in having under contract the one star that could do full justice to the part, that is Priscilla Dean. The picture was shown here for the first time last night at the Glendale theatre.

LEMON PIE

Seven-eighths cup sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, three tablespoons flour, one tablespoon cornstarch, one cup boiling water, three eggs, one lemon, one tablespoon butter. Sift together sugar, salt, flour and cornstarch. Add to boiling water and cook in double boiler until clear and smooth. Add yolks of three eggs and white of one, juice and rind of lemon. Stir well until thick, add butter and remove. Fill pastry lined pan and bake in moderate oven. Use two whites remaining for meringue.

WHAT IS MAN? IS REV. EDMONDS' SUBJECT

Rev. W. E. Edmonds preached Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church on the subject, "What is Man?" He said in part: "Let God be true, but every man a liar. Man was created in the image of God, but in all literature there is nothing more impressive than the story of creation. God called into being things that were not. He said, 'Let there be light,' and it was, and He called all the stars into place. The earth was prepared and it was good. The three persons of the one God—head, counsel, and love—were in our image, after our likeness; so God created man in His own image in the image of God created He him. A perfect man, God's masterpiece, He stepped forth with his eyes toward the stars, fit to have conference with God. And God told him, 'You shall have dominion over all the creatures of the earth.' We hear jibes and jokes about Adam; he done with such! That is sacred history.

And the man was made sinless, without knowledge of sin. But he was endowed with sovereignty will innocence is negative, he had not been tested. His testing time came; he yielded, he fell, and so he became initiated into experience of evil.

But no sooner had Adam sinned than the Redeemer was foretold, redemption appears.

So, whose man am I? The ownership is changed. His servant you are whom you obey. You are not your own; you are bought with a price. Suppose it is in a sense a commercial affair—if you profess to believe on Jesus Christ, it is a question of honest belonging to Him.

This is a universal question: He paid the price for every man. Is every man saved? Not if you sit back and won't come. But the moment you say, "I will," God says He does.

DUNLOPS DRAW BIG CROWD TO REVIVAL

Satan is going to have some mighty hard rows to hoe for the next few weeks in his combat with Evangelist Dr. H. P. Dunlop, if the initial meetings yesterday indicate anything. Thus his crowd greeted the speaker at the Tropic Presbyterian church.

The singing "Is the old-fashioned congregational kind and Mrs. Dunlop knows how to get everybody to sing the bright new choruses like "I Will Exchange My Cross for a Starry Crown" and "There Is With Me a Heart's Melody." The evangelist and his wife sang a duet each night which is most acceptable.

Saturday night a complimentary church dinner was given to Dr. and Mrs. Dunlop, served by the fine young people of the church. "This makes a fine introduction to a revival meeting," says Mr. Dunlop "and when the young people line up for the work we always count off a successful meeting."

WHAT IS MAN? IS REV. EDMONDS' SUBJECT

Rev. W. E. Edmonds preached Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church on the subject, "What is Man?" He said in part: "Let God be true, but every man a liar. Man was created in the image of God, but in all literature there is nothing more impressive than the story of creation. God called into being things that were not. He said, 'Let there be light,' and it was, and He called all the stars into place. The earth was prepared and it was good. The three persons of the one God—head, counsel, and love—were in our image, after our likeness; so God created man in His own image in the image of God created He him. A perfect man, God's masterpiece, He stepped forth with his eyes toward the stars, fit to have conference with God. And God told him, 'You shall have dominion over all the creatures of the earth.' We hear jibes and jokes about Adam; he done with such! That is sacred history.

And the man was made sinless, without knowledge of sin. But he was endowed with sovereignty will innocence is negative, he had not been tested. His testing time came; he yielded, he fell, and so he became initiated into experience of evil.

But no sooner had Adam sinned than the Redeemer was foretold, redemption appears.

So, whose man am I? The ownership is changed. His servant you are whom you obey. You are not your own; you are bought with a price. Suppose it is in a sense a commercial affair—if you profess to believe on Jesus Christ, it is a question of honest belonging to Him.

This is a universal question: He paid the price for every man. Is every man saved? Not if you sit back and won't come. But the moment you say, "I will," God says He does.

DUNLOPS DRAW BIG CROWD TO REVIVAL

Satan is going to have some mighty hard rows to hoe for the next few weeks in his combat with Evangelist Dr. H. P. Dunlop, if the initial meetings yesterday indicate anything. Thus his crowd greeted the speaker at the Tropic Presbyterian church.

The singing "Is the old-fashioned congregational kind and Mrs. Dunlop knows how to get everybody to sing the bright new choruses like "I Will Exchange My Cross for a Starry Crown" and "There Is With Me a Heart's Melody." The evangelist and his wife sang a duet each night which is most acceptable.

Saturday night a complimentary church dinner was given to Dr. and Mrs. Dunlop, served by the fine young people of the church. "This makes a fine introduction to a revival meeting," says Mr. Dunlop "and when the young people line up for the work we always count off a successful meeting."

"We are told in the Bible to 'believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved.' What is it that we believe on the Lord Jesus Christ?" says the evangelist. "To believe on a man means to put confidence in him in what he claims to be—whether a doctor, a merchant, a banker, a teacher, or what? What then does Jesus claim to be? (1) Christ the Son of God. Himself bears our sins in his own Body on the tree. (2) Deliverer from the power of sin. 'If the Son shall make you free you shall be free indeed.' (3) Infallible teacher. 'I am the way, the truth and the life.' Hence, to believe on Jesus means to put your trust in Him as your sin bearer, your deliverer from the power of sin, your teacher and your guide."

Monday night, tonight, the subject will be "When He saw the faith." Dr. and Mrs. Dunlop will sing a duet, "Can the World See Jesus in You?" 7:30 to 8:30 prompt.

Truths in Epigram

The less government we have, the better—the fewer laws, and the less confidence in power. The antidote to this abuse of formal government is, the influence of private character, the growth of the individual—Emerson.

I have lived to know that the secret of happiness is never to allow your energies to stagnate.—Clarke.

NOT A REMEDY

In an article concerning the Ku klux, a writer, deploring the existence of such an organization says that "if our institutions become so debilitated that they cannot do their work, and must be supplemented by secret fraternal organizations and lynch law, the time has come to move to some civilized country such as China."

This does not present what seems to be a proper or adequate remedy. It is no part of the plan of government, as outlined in the constitution, to achieve a national failure and then run away from the ruins. The better way would be to bring about drastic reforms in the parts of the mechanism that had gone wrong. The charge is made frequently, by persons high in authority and professional standing, that the criminal courts have well nigh broken down. Daily there is evidence that they do not function in accordance with the spirit that should lead them to uphold justice. On the contrary, many instances may be cited in which they have permitted the procedure to degenerate into farce. The arraignment of a prisoner charged with serious offense does not always mean that an effort is to be made to ascertain the guilt or innocence of the accused. It may be that the guilt is evident. Then that which follows is a mere series of trickeries designed to defeat the law, and conducted by attorneys sworn to uphold the law.

The public feels outraged by a series of such spectacles. It grows weary of stupid and crooked jurors, of shrewd and crooked attorneys, of "expert" witnesses willing to swear as directed. It resents the spectacle of a judge being made the puppet serving the purpose of unscrupulous counsel; permitting senseless technicality to hamper and confuse. The business of a trial court is to ascertain the truth, and to be guided by the relation of this truth to the statutes. If courts fail in this, the cure is in legislation, in the selection of able and upright jurists, in reform of methods, in restoring the morally unfit, who for a fee, become accessories after the fact to whatever crime has been committed.

Midnight prowlers only make matters worse. They are outlaws from the beginning. They have neither legal nor moral standing. They do not constitute a cure, but stand as an additional symptom of social disease. The people want crimes punished promptly and effectually. They are not going to run to China because in these respects their wants are not being met. On the contrary, they have faith in themselves to believe that they are capable of bringing about the desired reform.

AN ENDANGERED MAJORITY

It would be idle to assert that the democratic gain appeared as a surprise. There had been many things to foreshadow it. Congress has not made a record of such character as to escape adverse criticism. It did not win approval when it passed a bonus measure that at the time of passage it knew to be futile and meaningless. It had neglected to heed the pointed request of the President for ship subsidy. Its exhortation by General Dawes failed signally to increase its popularity. It had the important but disagreeable task of creating a tariff law, which, however much demanded by circumstances, never is received with favor. Moreover, the old rule of the swinging of the pendulum is as stable as that of gravitation before assailed by Einstein.

Reckoned in the present majority are a number elected not through any party affiliation, although nominally republican, but by their personal followings. That they should have such followings may be in instances, be mysterious, but that they do have them, the returns abundantly attest. This little group, radical in tendency, must be reckoned with. In it rests a singular power. If the members remain in line, the majority is as safe as though much larger. When they step out of line, a likelihood not to be ignored, the rest of the majority will have to be present and voting, or temporarily cease to be dominant.

California is glad that it lived up to its reputation as a republican state. The citizens had averred freely that they desired to have their representatives work in harmony with the administration. They proved that in so saying, they were sincere.

THE PRINCIPLE OF CENSORSHIP

By direct vote, the people of Massachusetts went on record against the proposed censorship of the movies. This is regarded by Will H. Hays, executive head of the screen industry, as a notable triumph. In his view a large share of the public is likely to join. The vote was not a blow at morals. It was a declaration in favor of sustaining constitutional liberty. The tendency to interfere with the activities of other people is distinctly mischievous. The authority that would place a censorship on moving pictures, would have equal right to pass upon every line published in paper or book, every lecture given from the rostrum, and every sermon prepared for pulpit delivery. Unhappily for the status of the censorship movement it has been motivated largely through the desire of professional reformers to get themselves attached to a job. The average citizen is a better judge of what he wants to see, and what is fit to be seen, than one of the professional reformers possibly could be. The latter has consideration for naught but his own, often jaundiced, opinions. He is a person of dim and restricted vision, ruled by the single notion of his own superior morality. It is natural to resent his interference, and to draw the conclusion that the purpose he proclaims is not the real purpose he has in view.

People want good films, illustrating life. The producers strive, with constant improvement, to fill the demand. The effect is showing. Management is getting into the hands of more intelligent men than ruled in the beginning when the movie world was all new. When the laws are infringed upon by the producer, there is ample police authority, just as there is in the case of the writer and publisher or speaker. Censorship, so far as tried, has been stupid in its operation, and wholly barren of good results.

Four of Japan's great seafarers have been stripped of their guns and are on their way to the scrap heap. This is particularly interesting in view of the many accusations that Japan had not entered upon the four-power pact in good faith.

The fact is worthy of note that the harbor at San Pedro is rapidly becoming one of the foremost oil ports of the world. Millions of dollars are being expended in making facilities for handling the vast trade centering there.

Greece is in quest of a big loan for the purpose of buying grain. The present supply is said to be enough for only two months. Perhaps some day European nations will awaken to the fact that if they would rather fight than work, the consequences may cease to appeal strongly to peoples that have chosen to stick to the old program of seedtime and harvest.

The Recuperative Power of the World

By DR. FRANK CRANE

One of the things few realize is the enormous recuperative power of mankind.

No one can estimate the hidden resources in human beings. This is not only true in individuals, where the most amazing recoveries take place, and people get well whom the doctors have unanimously decided ought to die, but also, it is true of nations and races.

The most persecuted races have proved the toughest and longest lived. The Jews today are vigorous and efficient in every country of the world, yet no people has been more oppressed.

After the great war the amazing thing is not the prostration of the world, but its recuperation. Wherever men have been given half a chance, they have begun building prosperity anew.

If the world could only get the burden of militarism and international anarchy off its shoulders, it would leap forward with astounding energy.

Because a petulant, reactionary world could not grasp the program of an international organization into whose hands supreme military power should be placed, the people are spending over 90 cents in every dollar yet on wars and preparations for war.

Hate, suspicion, reactionism, and cynicism still take their tremendous toll.

If people could only get together!

If France and Germany could only get together, quit despising and cursing, quit seeking vengeance, and take up co-operation!

Human beings are still nine-tenths savage. There is still a famine of self-restraint, of clear vision, and of large-heartedness.

Just one year of the Golden Rule, operated by the world, could put money in every man's pocket, and joy and hope in every woman's heart.

Why in the world do we consider love so impractical, ideal, and theoretical? Has not the experience of the world demonstrated that the most impractical, stupid, and deceiving thing is hate?

Why not get together, and believe in one another? Have we not had enough disastrous trial with suspicion, contempt, and contest?

All this old world needs is a chance. All it needs is to get the incubus of rival armies off its back, so that we could go to work untroubled. But, alas! the most uncommon thing in the world is Common Sense.

THE RIGHT WORD

QUERIES.

"Co-ordinating" and "More Perfectly"

"Unsigned," Youngstown, Ohio: "Please inform me whether or not the words in black face type in the following are correct: 'Perhaps I am a little over-wrought because of the many problems of the campaign, but I am going to tell you frankly that I am having more difficulty in co-ordinating with the secretary than is conducive to best results.'"

I sincerely wish that the secretary and the chairman would get together and find some means of co-operating more perfectly."

Answer: The writer of the foregoing query forgot to sign his name. First, according to the New Standard Dictionary it is unnecessary to spell either coordinate or cooperate with a hyphen. Co-ordinating is used correctly in the example given. Note the following from the New Standard: "I (intransitive) To be of the same order or rank or degree of classification; to come into coordination; harmonize; as, the two does not coordinate with that." The more is discussed question as to whether or not more perfectly and most perfectly are in good taste could have been avoided in the foregoing sentence if the writer had expressed the following: "I sincerely wish that the secretary and the chairman would get together and find some means of perfect cooperation. Since the cooperation was anything but perfect, it seems to me that the change I have suggested fully conveys the thought intended. It is only fair to say, however, that there is authority for the use of more perfectly, and that the weakening of the absolute meaning of the word in colloquial speech has induced many writers (some of them prominent ones) to use such expressions as more perfect."

Tomorrow Is (or Will Be)?

S. Rosenberg, New York, N. Y.: "Will appreciate your answer in your column to the following: Which is the correct sentence, To-morrow is Tuesday or To-morrow will be Tuesday?"

Answer: Mr. Rosenberg should take the following suggestion to heart. The third word of his query shows carelessness in writing. The word should have been your, but there should not be two such words so near each other. The sentence should have had a subject, and shall is the right word, not will. Note the following: "I shall appreciate your answer to the following: Which sentence is correct: 'Tomorrow is Tuesday' or 'Tomorrow will be Tuesday'? Tomorrow will be Tuesday is correct."

Let us end this perpetual glibbering and bleating about sex. The more we talk about it, the more we play into the hands of those who make capital out of it. The more capital that can be made from it, the more plays and novels will be produced concerning it. To the detriment of the morals of the flapper.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

Up somewhere in the hills is a reservoir. Cement or granite walls holding great stores of water.

Then there are dams and gates and sluices and outflows.

Through which the water flows.

The water in the reservoir holds potential power.

Without an outflow it is still, calm, motionless and powerless.

With an outflow it is a regulated flood.

Driving wheels, moving engines, revolving dynamos and producing energy.

All from the latent energy in the reservoir.

That is spilled over a dam.

But with the creation of current and energy there is more to be done.

Wires are needed to carry the power here and there and yonder.

To drive engines with.

Turn lathes.

Light and heat cities.

It would be a sad waste of power if the created energy were permitted to waste itself.

If the dynamos merely revolved.

Without transmitting the power where it is needed.

For that would be waste of energy indeed.

In communities there are reservoirs of latent power.

In the minds and impulses of men and women.

Power to do all the industrial and social things necessary for welfare.

But we need the wires to carry it.

And the wires are men and women.

These are the wires to carry energy and impulses and inspiration here, there and everywhere.

To light the dark places.

To bring heat where it is cold.

To bring food where there is hunger.

Shelter where there is rain and inclement weather.

So it is as important that we distribute power as it is that we create it.

For power and energy and impulse without direction and distribution are of no use.

To what end is the great impulse if it is not harnessed and directed toward some useful and needed purpose.

Of what use is the dream if it does not fruit in deeds.

Service is not in dream or reflection alone. It is in action.

So in all of us is the reservoir of power and influence.

Being created daily and hourly.

But too often unharnessed and undirected.

No cold hungry are fed.

No cold are warmed.

No darkness is made light.

The genius of men has harnessed the latent power here and there and yonder.

Where there is work to do.

The genius of a great mind harnesses its energy to useful purpose.

And sends usefulness where it is needed.

And the wires are men and women.

These are the wires to carry energy and impulses and inspiration here, there and everywhere.

To light the dark places.

To bring heat where it is cold.

To bring food where there is hunger.

FRANCE AS SHE IS TODAY, TOLD BY CONSUL

Louis Sentous Describes
Work of Resurrection
From War

By W. L. TAYLOR

Louis Sentous, the French consul in Los Angeles, was the speaker at the Kiwanis club luncheon Friday noon last at the Broadway inn, being the guest of W. L. Truitt, who was the presiding officer for the occasion. The address of Mr. Sentous throws much light upon the heroic effort France is making to recover from the devastations of war; it also shows that Germany is not measuring up to what is expected of a nation which wrought such havoc with France and her other neighbors.

The address of Mr. Sentous is not delivered at long range; it is the expert opinion of a careful observer and native of that "sunny land," across the seas. The address is given in full as follows:

"In the last days of April, 1871, M. Pouyer-Quertier took possession of the ministry of finances to which he was appointed by the president of the French republic, M. Thiers. His first duty was to ascertain the condition of the French treasury. M. Collard-Duillet, in charge of the financial department, when asked by his new chief how much money he had on hand, replied: 'What we have in the strong box could easily be put in my hat. We have about 500,000 francs (the equivalent then of $100,000 American money).'

France Pays Indemnity
"Thus France—vanquished, invaded, bound France—which had to pay a war indemnity of five billion francs in gold, France that had 45 of her 86 departments occupied by German troops, and from which occupied territory she received no taxes (Germany collecting same); France possessed only the mere trifle of half a million francs.

"However, the French minister of finances had found, six months later, one billion and a half of francs in hard gold, which he handed, in Berlin, to the German government. On the 11th day of October, 1871, he wired from Berlin to the president of the French republic, M. Thiers, as follows: 'I called on the German emperor today at noon; he received me most cordially and told me that the German government was happy to see the promptness with which France was fulfilling her engagements and that his government renounced, then and there all financial guarantees which it had exacted from France.'

"You will note by what I have just read that not only did the German government occupy with its troops one-half of French soil, but it also had insisted upon financial guarantees.

Germany Refuses to Pay
"Now, let me see, on the other hand, what has been the attitude of Germany under the provisions of the Treaty of Versailles, signed not only by the allies, but also by Germany. The German government has consistently refused to honor to its signature, has stubbornly refused to pay any moneys due under that treaty, moneys, mind you, that do not represent a single mark of levied tribute imposed upon the vanquished by the victor; France has not asked a single penny of tribute; she has asked only payments for reparation for the wanton destruction of ten of her richest departments. In other words, in 1870, Germany exacted from France a war indemnity of five billion gold francs, ravished Alsace and Lorraine, and until the gold payments were made under the terms of the Treaty of Frankfurt, a treaty which was fulfilled to the letter by France. Germany demanded financial guarantees and occupied, besides, 45 of her departments.

"We have advanced for the account of Germany 90 billions of francs, for the rebuilding of the devastated regions, and she has paid the allies about one billion, and that only by constant bickerings and as a result of a dozen allied conferences held at different places. Of this sum France has not received a solitary mark. Germany has a priority on all money paid by Germany until she receives her full quota.

No Guarantees
"What guarantees have we? 'We occupy on the left side of the Rhine a narrow strip where we are not permitted under the provisions of the Treaty of Versailles to collect one mark of taxes.'

"You will see by what precedes that we are right when we accuse Germany of acting in bad faith.

"Moreover, the German government has just passed a bill under the terms of which it sets aside from tax money the sum of 29 billion marks for reparations. . . . For what reparations, French or Belgian? Oh, no. That would be too good. For what purpose then? Why, just to indemnify its own subjects, Germans, for losses of various kinds suffered by them during the war. It has, moreover, already paid 11 billion marks to the stockholders of different navigation companies, German, of course. The Germans are greedy and experts of the theory of 'primo mihi, me first.'

Wanton Destruction
"As to the unnecessary destruction caused by a cruel invader, which, by the way, I have observed with my own eyes upon a pilgrimage which I made to the devastated regions about a year and a half ago, I will quote the statements recently made by an American. 'I refer to the great observer and impartial writer, Mr. Frank G. Carpenter. After describing the destruction which he saw in 10 of the richest departments of France, (where, before the war, 75 per cent of the total wealth of continental

GREEK REFUGEES, FEARING TURKS, STAMPEDE FROM THRACE

On hearing that the Turks were to occupy their country, the Greeks in Thrace became panic-stricken and rushed by thousands to escape. The photograph shows refugees climbing on the tops of freight cars in their flight from the threatened districts.

France was to be found and from which even today not one cent of taxes is collected by the French government, for the reason that you cannot tax people whose homes, lands, mines and manufacturing establishments have been totally destroyed), he speaks as follows of the city of Lens, in the coal mining district of northern France:

"At the close of the war, Lens was a mass of crushed bricks and mortar. Its great power plants had been reduced to a debris of broken machinery, while the mines and their workings had been systematically ruined by high-power explosives. Now the pumps work day and night, and they have about 50,000 cubic yards of water still to take out. The pumping is going on at the rate of 3,000 cubic yards every hour. Many of the pits have been lined with concrete walls to keep out the inflowing streams, and this costs something like $300,000 a pit.

A Great Coal-Mining Center

"There are now 6,000 men employed in the coal mines about Lens, most of whom live in rude shacks of wood or corrugated iron. But 5,000 new houses have already gone up, and there will soon be enough for the workers. The new homes are far better than any of the miners' homes I know in our country, with the exception of those in the Minnesota iron region back of Duluth, where the profits of the municipalities from the leased mining lands are so great that they have better school buildings and public improvements than in any other part of the United States. Here each miner has a little garden, where he can raise vegetables enough for his family. Coal, electric light and water are free.

"In addition to the miners getting out coal, there are 5,000 workmen employed in building shaft houses and plants, repairing the underground galleries, and making more and more of them ready for work. At present there are 21 pits from which they are taking out coal, and the monthly output is large.

"Before the war, these mines about Lens produced about one-tenth of all the coal output of France. Their annual yield was about 4,500,000 tons, and the director of the company which owns the mines tells me he hopes to regain this production within three years. Before the war he employed 18,000 men, who occupied 8,000 houses. When it ended every mine was destroyed, and there were only 30 houses left standing.

"The destruction began in 1914, and it continued up to and after the armistice. As soon as the Germans came in they forbade any measures being taken to drain the mines or protect the workings. In 1917 they started a systematic destruction which continued until the end of the war. All the pits were dynamited and flooded to such an extent that about one-fifth of the coal production of France was destroyed. The soldiers went from shaft to shaft blowing up the workings, and leaving behind not a single engine, boiler or train. The electric machinery was taken out and by 1918 the destruction of the Lens mines was practically complete. Before the Germans left they set off more explosives and practically destroyed all the coal-mining machinery of the invaded territory.

"The surface work is enormous. Much of this has already been done. Most of the railways have been repaired, the stations rebuilt, and thousands of houses are now going up all over this region. In the Nord mines something like 10,000 dwellings are entirely repaired, and out of 22,000 houses in the Pas de Calais, 15,000 had been rebuilt by the first of last year. This work of reinstating the mines is to be seen everywhere throughout the departments of the Nord and the Pas de Calais; and it is only a question of time when it will be completed.

"The region of Armentieres is almost altogether given up to textiles. Before the war more than two-thirds of the wooden spindles of France were in the invaded districts, and a great part of the linen spindles and looms. The Germans exported more than a half million spindles, and 4,000,000 cotton spindles. They sent home 15,000 cotton looms, and a greater number of looms used for linens.

"They destroyed so much combing machinery that it will take about $32,000,000 to replace it, and spinning machinery will take another $12,000,000. They blew up, or crunched, dyeing and ironing plants. It is said that the loss in the textile industries alone is upward of $2,000,000,000.

France Makes Great Progress

"As you can readily see, France has rebuilt thousands of miles of railroads, hundreds of bridges, hundreds of stations, thousands of public buildings, schools, factories and homes; has cleared thousands upon thousands of acres of land; has filled miles upon miles of trenches; all this must be paid for, and France is paying for it while Germany looks on.

"Speaking of trenches, I shall never forget the works known as the Hindenburg line, which stretched for miles in either direction just east of Rheims. Imagine a row of ditches about six feet deep and three feet wide every 10 feet, and that for a width of several miles. That will give you an idea of things.

"France is busy—in the factories, in the fields, everywhere. And I predict that she will come out of this terrible situation gloriously within a few years.

Regarding Militarism

"Just a word about French militarism. There seems to be an impression, created mostly by German propaganda, and also, I am sorry to have to say it, by a certain European government which it would not be proper for me to name, that France is going about the world with a chip on her shoulder. Now let us see what the true facts are. The best way to determine the size of an army is to find out how much money is set aside for the war department. From official figures recently received by my office I find that we are now actually spending 8 per cent less money for the war and navy departments than before the war, while several other nations in Europe have increased their military expenses. For instance, England spends 76 per cent more money now than in 1914.

"While other nations were adding new units to their navies, France did not build a single ship.

"At the close of the war we had under arms practically every able-bodied man that was not needed in other departments, say about 3,000,000 men. Within a few months we had reduced our army to about 800,000 men, today their number has been reduced to less than 600,000, which number includes the army of occupation of 100,000 men and the 35,000 men now in Syria, these being the remnants of an army of 75,000 which we had to maintain in Cilicia, to fight the Turks two years ago.

"The time of service which is compulsory under the French law has been reduced from seven years' time in the latter 70's to five years, then to two years, and now it has been reduced to 18 months. It will be shortly reduced to one year.

"We have also been accused of maintaining black savage troops in the occupied part of Germany. While it is true that in the beginning of the occupation period we maintained a few regiments of colored troops, we have long since withdrawn them, not that they were less disciplined or less well behaved than other troops, but to satisfy the German people, French military discipline is very severe and all troops, without distinction of color, must behave at all times and under all circumstances.

"In passing, let me mention that on last Armistice Day I was invited to the manifestation held in Los Angeles on that eventful day, and before me passed a contingent of colored troops. I saw nothing wrong in that. Most of the nation be damned because perhaps a black soldier has committed a crime? Do not white soldiers sometimes forget themselves, too? 'It is not my purpose to criticize any nation, but I cannot help saying that perhaps if England and the United States had ratified the three party treaty with France she would have long since reduced her army to the smallest number consistent with safety.

"The near Orient incident of recent occurrence shows very plainly that France desires nothing but peace. When England requested her to send French troops to the Dardanelles, she replied that being deeply attached to the policy of maintaining the peace of the world, she could not accede to her request. For 50 years France, under many great provocations and trying circumstances, has maintained peace. Republics as a rule are not in favor of war.

France Not Isolated

"It has also been said that France, by her international relations with other continental nations, since the war has been isolated. Now, what are the facts?

"Receiving no support from her ally across the channel, she turned to other European nations. She made an alliance with that small, but valiant country, Belgium; she made an alliance with Poland; favorable agreements with Czechoslovakia, Rumania, Jugoslavia, and made peace with the Turkish Nationalists at Angora. Her relations with Italy, one moment somewhat strained, are now most cordial. And, of course, it is needless to say, France maintains for America that traditional friendship which had its beginning at the time of the war of independence. France understands perfectly well the traditional and benevolent attitude of America towards European nations. And she feels as insecure as she herself is concerned, America will always be found on her side, if she is unjustly attacked, even in the absence of any treaty or alliance.

No Danger of Bankruptcy

"Again, other friends of France fear that her finances are badly involved and that there is danger that she may become bankrupt. France is, in fact, an agricultural country, nearly all her wealth comes from the soil, every inch of which is thoroughly tilled and, as Mr. Carpenter, whom I quoted a little while ago, says, 'The French farmer produces more wheat to the acre than any other farmer in the world.' Even now her 10 departments which have been trampled upon for nearly five years, are producing large quantities of wheat, oats and sugar beets. When this soil is once fully reclaimed, which will not be long, her mines again producing and her factories working, the government will receive, through taxation, large sums of money, which will permit it to meet its obligations.

"At the present time, owing to the fact that no taxes to speak of are collected in the devastated regions, taxes are very high in France. Taxes which in 1913 amounted to an average of 400 francs per capita, are today 2473 francs, and that in a country where the fortunes are evenly divided but small. Thus, in England there are 6,200 families with incomes varying from half a million to a million francs. In France, we have only 641 such families. By this you will see that the burden of the French taxpayer is heavy indeed.

"There will be no bankruptcy proceedings in a country that in 1871 found in a few months billions of francs, so that the boots of the Prussian soldiers might not tread on its sacred soil any longer than absolutely necessary.

"And France will pay in full all her just and lawful debts, though Germany never pays her a single cent.

"France is doing everything to stabilize her money and discharge her obligations. In 1914, with a gold reserve of 4,141 million francs, she had a total circulation of 6,688 millions. In 1922, with a gold reserve of 5,532 millions, she has a circulation of 37,128 million francs, while at the end of 1920 she had 37,501 million francs currency in circulation. She has, in less than a year, withdrawn from circulation 775 millions of francs. She is not issuing any more paper money. Germany, on the other hand, has now a gold reserve of 1,000 million marks, with a circulation of 4,000 billions paper marks. Even now her printing presses are running at forced capacity.

Comparison

"On the one hand we have a country where practically no destruction took place, whose wealth remains wholly intact, whose factories are working overtime, but who refuses to meet its obligations subscribed to under a solemn treaty.

"On the other hand we have a country which lost 75 per cent of its wealth and 1,500,000 men, and that country on its own resources pays its disabled veterans pensions amounting to millions and advances 90 billions for reconstruction and rehabilitation.

"I will now leave it to you to judge which country deserves the greater credit and the sympathy of the world."

The late Mrs. George Gould, who strongly disapproved of divorce, was once talking to a young divorcee at a Lakewood dinner party. The latter was admiring Mrs. Gould's jewels. In the midst of her gurgling she commented on her hostess's wedding ring. "How old-fashioned it looks!" she babbled on. "In the past they made them so much larger than they do now."

He is now, at 78, trying to retire, but before he can do so the Postal Telegraph must get permission to abandon the Visalia office, of which he has been manager for 35 years. ## EAGLE ROCK HAS MUSICAL TREAT AT MYSTERIOUS BURGLARIES

Eight Events Follow in Chain of House Looting

With the mystery of the four Townsend Avenue burglaries occurring some time ago, still unsolved, four more burglaries have been added to the puzzle. These occurred in the last three days, three Saturday night, and one Friday night.

Though the police have been investigating, no traces have been uncovered that might lead to apprehension of the thief or thieves.

On Saturday night three burglaries were reported in the neighborhood of Colorado boulevard and Sierra Vista. The George residence and the home of C. E. Raymond were both looted; the latter reporting the loss of a vacuum sweeper, a six shooter, cuff buttons and other jewelry. Other loot was taken from 127 S. Sierra Vista, the police report, including 3 watches and a bracelet; the officer failing to get the resident's name.

These added to the alarm that was felt after the robbery Friday night of the residence of Andrew S. Wilson of 317 Loy Lane, who reported the disappearance of a quantity of silverware, a diamond ring, a Waltham gold watch, and $14 in cash.

SCHOOL SURVEY TO BEGIN ON TUESDAY

Committee to Gather at Board Headquarters for Visitation

Tuesday morning at 8 the members of the committee of fifteen appointed to make a survey of city schools with a view to determining what can be done to relieve congestion, and to make recommendations to a mass meeting, will gather at the headquarters of the board and make a tour of the schools, beginning with Grand View. They will be accompanied by Business Manager David Black, who will be prepared to furnish any information the committee members may desire. From Grand View they will motor to Central and Columbus and from there to the balance of the schools. An attempt will be made to cover all of them before the afternoon session closes that they may see the actual conditions under which children are working. After that they will ride to Verdugo Woodlands and will probably have a conference with the owners of the Sparr Tract who have intimated a willingness to co-operate in the securing of a school site for that rapidly developing district.

The inspection will probably focus on Pacific, Acacia, and Glendale Avenue schools where crowded conditions are most acute and on Broadway School which is also congested. Members of the committee are Harold L. Adams, of the Pacific Avenue district; Mrs. Myrtle Buckman, of the Grand View section; H. V. Henry of 353 Pioneer Drive, Francis Wilkerson of 1140 Stanley avenue; William C. Wattles of 1218 South Glendale; Peter L. Ferry of 614 East Acacia, O. M. Newby, 803 North Pacific; O. G. Thompson, 618 Glenwood Court; Mrs. E. S. McKee, 180 West Chestnut; J. L. Hoken, Verdugo Woodlands; Mrs. O. W. Esselman, 1721 Gardena avenue; Ernest J. Morgan, 1125 South Central avenue.

The group is a very representative one and if the fifteen can agree upon a program it should be a good and practical one.

WILL TEST MOTORISTS

LONDON. — England's Ministry of Transport has declared war on speed merchants and road hogs, by the proposal of a presentation bill to be laid before Parliament to the effect that every motorist with a license shall undergo a physical fitness and brain test, which will determine whether he is to continue holding a license. As the law stands, a license can be taken out by deaf, dumb, halt and blind.

EARLY SIGNS OF CANCER

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE
Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Handicaps of Childhood," Etc.
(Copyright, 1932, by The Associated Newspapers)

Because of the increasing occurrence of cancer, and because of the well-established fact that, despite its malignancy, cancer is a curable disease if detected in good season, I would today enumerate some of its commoner early signs.

These, of course, vary with the type of cancer, and especially with the part of the body which it has selected for attack. One would, for example, hardly expect cancer of the breast and cancer of the stomach to exhibit similar symptoms.

In the case of cancer of the breast, which is largely responsible for the highest cancer rate among women as compared with men, a slight, but persistent swelling is usually the first sign. The fact that it may be quite painless should not in itself be deemed reason for disregarding it. Most cancers are painless in their first stages.

"Any woman who notices a lump in the breast," to quote from an authoritative medical publication, "should at once consult a physician. It is very misleading to be told that the lump is harmless until it is too large to remove, only to find that it has already developed into a cancer."

With cancer of the stomach swelling is not among the early indications. The suspicious signs in this instance are chronic digestive disturbances and distress after eating, particularly if accompanied by sallowness of the complexion, loss of weight and an increasing weakness.

Cancer of the intestines has an increasing constipation as one of its first signs. The bowel movements may have an unusually offensive odor. Also there may be passage of blood and abnormal matter such as slime or mucus.

In women the uterus or womb is, next to the stomach, the most frequent site of cancer. Its first symptom, in the majority of cases, is an irregular, bloodstained, watery discharge. Or, in the case of women who have not reached the menopause, there may be a persistent bleeding, continuing between the menstrual periods.

Cancer of the skin, to which men are more subject than women, usually begins as a little lump or scaling patch. Cancer of the lip almost always appears first in the form of a small, painless surface sore, gradually enlarging. For that matter, a skin sore on any part of the body surface, a sore which refuses to heal, should be accounted possibly pre-cancerous and as calling for medical observation.

Finally, in the case of cancer of the tongue, throat or nose, a persistent raw spot on the tongue, chronic sense of discomfort in the throat; with a change of voice and difficulty in speaking, and a swelling in one side of the nose, are early symptoms.

Any of the above-mentioned signs, it should be added, may occur without being in any way of cancerous origin. Let no one torture himself or herself with the thought that if they do occur they must necessarily mean cancer.

At the same time, since they may mean cancer, and since delay is peculiarly perilous in cancer, reassurance through a medical examination should promptly be sought. That is the one wise course to take.

LAKES FOUND IN SAND DUNES

ALAMOSA, Colo. — Three picturesque lakes, each covering several acres, have been discovered 18 miles east of the town of Hooper, across the great sand dunes near there. The lakes were found by Paul Gilbert, forest ranger of the San Isabel national forest.

On the shores of the lakes, Gilbert found burial mounds, stone bowls, curved pedestals and arrow heads in profusion, proving some band of Indians, probably the Utes, once inhabited the region in Southwestern Colorado.

The trip can be made only with the greatest difficulty by pack, Gilbert said, as around the lakes is an area of 80 miles of loose sand. The dunes rise to the height of several hundred feet and drop abruptly into precipices, changing with the ever-shifting winds.

"SINKING" EDUCATION

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, EUGENE, ORE., Nov. 20.—Roland Orne, University student here, has discovered why the hole is in the doughnut. Its to quill a collage diploma through.

Orne, who has learned the name of the "sinker check" through his manipulations of a doughnut cutter, hot lard and assemblage, is paying his way through college solely, thank you, simply by catering to the American appetite for the sinker.

With two student helpers, Orne concentrates upon his doughnut making every Saturday. No doughnut is complete without one Orne doughnut, no corner too dull but that it might be brightened by their golden appeal. Sixty doughnuts and doughnuts were made and sold from January 1 to June 4 of this year by Orne and his fellow workers.

'SOUL MECHANICS' DESCRIBED AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH

"Spiritual Mechanics" was the subject of the morning discourse given by Rev. E. E. Ford at the First Baptist church of Glendale, Sunday.

"We in Glendale live so close to opportunity that we sometimes fail to see the work there is to be done."

"We need more wisdom and spiritual strength. We all need this strength so that we may choose correctly. Without it we cannot do the work that is mapped out for us. This suggests the topic, 'Spiritual Mechanics.'"

"My subject this morning is from Acts 1, 8th verse—'Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost has come upon you.'"

"We often take stock of our natural resources, but seldom do we take stock of our spiritual resources. Power is the problem of the age. The aim is to move—to overcome. God wants us to have power to work. Anything will move down hill, but if we are to amount to anything we must have power to go uphill, also—to do real work. 'All power is given unto me,' said Christ, and freely he offers to extend it to us."

"High voltage electricity cannot be used for ordinary work unless the voltage is brought down by a transformer. So it is with God's power. No man can look on the face of God and live, but with Jesus as the transformer God's power can be adjusted to use by human beings. The Christian man or woman is God's dynamo. Let's make a good connection with God's great heart—the original source of power."

In the evening Rev. R. W. Mottern gave an illustrated sermon on the "Life and Work of Martin Luther."

SOLITARY CHRISTIAN LONESOME PERSON SAYS BROOKS

The solitary Christian is seldom a happy one, said Keith L. Brooks at the Men's Bible class Sunday, in the city hall. The class had an attendance of ninety. One hundred for next Sunday, was adopted as a slogan.

One of the great purposes of John's first epistle is stated in the 14th verse of the first chapter: 'These things write me unto you that your joy may be full.' A little religion is a very painful thing. Real Christianity takes the pain away. John's words are the very echo of the words of Jesus Himself, who said, 'These things have I spoken unto you that you may remain in me and that your joy might be full.' John says that this joy depends upon the realization of our common fellowship in the Lord. The solitary Christian is seldom a happy one. One reason for the marked absence of the exulting joy in modern religious life is the loss of reality in fellowship in the church. Where will we find such fellowship as is found among spiritual people? Such bonds of union do not exist between sinners men for evil naturally tends to division.

"If we say we have no sin we deceive ourselves." Some sincere folks think they have perfection in the flesh. They declare that he sinful nature in them has been eradicated. John shows the impossibility of this position. He goes on to show that those who say they have not sinned not only deceive themselves but make God a liar and prove that His word is not in them. If perfect men existed they would be the last to say so, for the higher a man gets in the spiritual life the lower is his descent in humility.

Self-delusion as to one's state before God is the clearest trait of the devil. It has always been the devil's work to keep unsaved men ignorant of the fact that they are sinners. He does some of the same work in Christians. He takes a man's heart lie to itself, for imagination of one's own sinlessness is an inward lie. The great object of the gospel is to keep us humble, yet animate us by the spirit. When we get to the place where we have taken the highest plans, God can do nothing for us. The believer will always have shortcomings to confess. He will always have need of Christ as his advocate.

VOCATIONAL WORK OF VETS BUREAU RE-OPENS

Members of the American Legion and all citizens interested in the welfare of ex-service men should spread abroad the information that Monday, December 16, is the last day on which applications for vocational training may be accepted by the Veterans' bureau. Under the deficiency bill, applications for such training are limited to 18 months following the passage of the act. This made December 16 the time limit. Even though it may not be convenient for a disabled man to begin his training now, he will not lose the opportunity if he makes application at once. The law gives him a year in which to start after the application is in.

Further information can be had from the Veterans' bureau, located in Los Angeles, or through the local post of the American Legion.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

THE THREE GIFTS
A friend of mine, and I had not seen
His face for many a day;
And I wondered where he might have been
In the time he'd been away.
So I shook his hand and he took mine;
'How's the world been coming, Bob?'
I said and he smiled and answered 'Fine!
I've got a wife and a boy and a job!'

"Got a wife and a boy and a job," said he,
And the boy and the job are small,
But the wife's as sweet as a wife can be,
And I love 'em one and all.
And every day when I say good-by
My pulses leap and throb,
For there isn't a richer man than I
With a wife and a boy and a job!"

"I've not had much in the way of wealth,
But I feel like a millionaire,
For we've got a home and we've got health,
So I guess I've got my share.
And I wouldn't trade with a soul I know,
Not with idler or purse-proud snob,
And my head is high and I hold it so,
With a wife and a boy and a job!"

"And the boy and the job are small," he said,
But they'll grow some after while,
And the sky is blue up overhead,
And the wife has a sunny smile.
And the whistle blows and I've got to go,
For it isn't for me to rob
The Boss of the work that will make 'em grow—
The wife and the boy and the job!"

M'GRAW GETTING COLORFUL STARS

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Editor)

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—In possession of a "million-dollar" infield and with the promise of an outfield almost as valuable, the dopesters can see nothing but a pitching rule for Jack Bentley, the recently acquired all-around star from Baltimore.

The Giants need pitchers, if they are going to win their third successive pennant and if Bentley is one-third as good as he is said to be, he will be worth the $50,000 or $75,000 that the New Yorkers are reported to have paid for him.

Bentley comes near to being the only attraction that the Giants could get to offset the drawing power of Babe Ruth. Bentley and Ruth have much in common. Both are fine left-handed pitchers, with Bentley having, perhaps, the edge; both are home run hitters; both are first basemen and outfielders; both have a lot of temperament and both are from Baltimore.

From other angles, Bentley is a more consistent hitter and a better base runner. He is younger and his star is just in its ascendancy, while Ruth's is not only dimming, but threatens to go out.

If Bentley should happen to do all the things in fast company next year as well as he has been doing for three years in the minors and if Ruth has slipped as far as is generally believed, the Giants have a fine chance to take a lot of business away from the new Yankee stadium, and from the standpoint of modern baseball, the "gate" is always the first to be considered.

With a young $75,000 outfielder—Jimmy O'Connell, from the Pacific Coast—and with Bentley, a $50,000 star filled with color, as well as a whole team that is regarded as the best in baseball, the Giants have enough drawing power now to induce the Yankee owners to say some strong words in the vicinity of Babe Ruth.

If some reports are to be believed, the powerful words have already been said within hearing distance and Ruth, according to some of his close friends, is going to spend the winter season in semi-training around his New England farm.

If he elects to follow that course this winter, Ruth will have a thinner waistline and a fatter pocketbook next spring. He went to Havana last winter and dropped $100,000.—Tis said.

Some stories have been going around that McGraw bought Bentley only to use him as trading material with the Cincinnati Reds for Eddie Roush.

The Reds wanted Bentley to the extent of $40,000 bid and they apparently do not want Roush. However, with Cunningham and O'Connell available, it doesn't seem logical that the Giants should be desirous of Roush.

Cunningham showed in the world's series that he is one of the best young prospects in the league. He has some faults, of course, but he hasn't had the experience and when it comes down to that fine point—who are the perfect outfielders and how did they become perfect?

The Once Over

FOOTBALL, PAST AND PRESENT
By H. I. PHILLIPS

Football is a game to which American fathers send their hard-boiled sons for a trimming they themselves are unable to administer.

Sitting in the stands through October and November, popper can see the husky offspring he never was able to handle get kicked in the face to a fare-thee-well. It does them both good. Pop realizes that the boy can be licked, and the boy realizes the folly of a life of violence.

There is no game like it for breaking a son to harness.

Still, football isn't what it used to be. In the old days of the Hefflingers, Hogans and Shevins it was strictly an eye for an eye and an ear for an ear. That was before the rate of exchange went down.

Numbering the players was never heard of. The referee posted a bulletin giving the names of the survivors after each scrimmage. The demand of that period was that they number the doctors, bonesetters and stretcher-bearers.

Those were the days when they used to take the college football team to the field in a hack and bring them back in a hearse.

Team play was not so important; it was every man for himself after the initial whistle.

Players were picked for their size, strength and pugilistic tendencies. All a student who wanted to make the varsity eleven had to do was to find what saloon the head coach frequented, visit it, knock over a row of tables and fight his way to the street, licking the police

Another Minister Slain by a Woman

Rev. Leonard J. Christler

Rev. Leonard J. Christler, widely known as "The Bishop of All Outdoors," was slain in his home in Havre, Mont., by Mrs. Marguerite Carleton, who killed herself. Mystery surrounds the motive.

The Temples of the ancient Sumerians (5,000 years ago) were made of sun-dried bricks, and were of the shape of mountain-towers, the ancestors of the modern church steeples. These ancient temples are now mounds of earth and crumbled brick.

reserves as they arrived and winding up the riot by flicking over a few standing trolley cars with the thumb and forefinger.

That was the era of the Hairy Ape on the gridiron.

A man had to be tougher than the entrance examinations to attract the slightest attention.

A non-destructible face would get a student further than excellence in Greek. A man who made the 'varsity had to have a nose that would turn the ankle of any player who stepped on it. You couldn't tell his ears from iron door knobs. His chin looked like the famous landscape on the Prudential Life calendars. Ah, my lads, his was the skin the armor experts loved to touch!

No forward pass was heard of in those days. Nothing could be tossed about except the opposing players.

Really, Anastasia, the game was so tough that thousands of spectators were injured for life through watching it. Only a few recovered in time to attend the next year's games. This cut down the attendance and resulted in a demand to open the game. Gradually the importance of smashing tactics became minimized, until today the player with a thin skull, tender wrists and pink complexion has a chance to become a football hero if he can think fast and run even faster.

He who fights and runs away, if he catch the pass, shall save the day.

Of course, many a player is knocked for a row of Greek letter societies as of old, but with the game opened up the spectator is given a better chance to see the blows exchanged. Which is why they are having to build the stadiums larger each year.

This year the game has been modified by further changes in the rules. The most radical change allows a team after a touchdown to bring the ball out at least five yards from the goalposts and try for another touchdown instead of the usual goal, if it so decides.

This should run up the list of injuries considerably.

The unwritten law that no football coach shall stay at Yale more than two seasons remains unaltered.
